Communicating and Using Web 2.0 Tools (Organization and Presentation) for the Ed Media Job-based and Traditional Internships

Grading Criteria	Descriptors
Unacceptable work	The work and information in the wiki does not meet criteria required in the Internship manual. The information on the wiki pages is not organized and has no visual appeal. Graphics, if used, are irrelevant to the topic. The presentation of information is not balanced and shows bias and insensitivity in the use of images and icons.
At or below average work	The work and information in the wiki meets some of the criteria required in the Internship manual. The information on the wiki pages is poorly organized and has limited visual appeal. Graphics, if used, are sometimes relevant to the topic. The presentation of information is not always balanced and may show some bias and insensitivity in the use of images and icons.
At or above average work	The work and information in the wiki meets most of the criteria required in the Internship manual. The information on the wiki pages is organized so that it is relatively easy to understand and has some visual appeal. Graphics, if used, are generally relevant to the topic and support the written text. The presentation of information is mostly objective and free of bias, and some sensitivity has been shown in the use of images and icons.
Exemplary work	The work and information in the wiki meets all of the criteria required in the Internship manual. The information on the wiki pages is effectively organized so that it is easily understood and is visually appealing. Graphics, if used, are relevant, explained and support the written text. Hyperlinks and other hypermedia aid understanding and add interest to the topic. The presentation of information is objective, balanced and free of bias (e.g. age, culture, gender, race), and images and icons are used sensitively.
